

SPANISH FOR THE PROFESSIONS (SPAN) MAJOR*

Overview

Spanish is no longer a “foreign” language – it’s the second most common language in the United States after English. It’s also spoken in nearly 30 other countries around the world. With the high demand for bilingual speakers in today’s global marketplace, your knowledge of this fascinating language and culture could be your passport to increased job opportunities and marketability in a number of fields. Research shows that learning another language strengthens your problem solving and creative thinking abilities, and these skill sets will serve you well throughout life.
